Collective Action against Corruption in Israel

Example of Collective Action in Israel:

- Maala uses its reputable Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR) index to reach out to a wide range of organizations to alert about corruption.
- In detail, Maala extended the CSR index chapter of ethical behavior with new questions which put the spotlight on areas with a high corruption risk such as the approval of business partners, providing gifts and hospitality, approval of donations and training of employees.
- The publication of the Index including the results of the new questions generated a vibrant public discussion and helped implementing anti-corruption standards.
- The project is funded by the Siemens Integrity Initiative (1st funding round).
 - Project duration: 5 years
 - Funding volume in US-Dollar (million): 0.48 M

"I am pleased to observe that with the support of the Siemens Integrity Initiative (which provides financial support for anti-corruption projects of non-profit organizations) the awareness for ethical behavior in Israel rose and the issue of corruption started to be discussed in public fora.

I am proud that the Siemens Integrity Initiative is financially supporting the well known and independent local NGO, Ma'ala, which helps foster clean business in Israel

I am content to notice that new ethics standards including against corruption were set in the business community after Israel joined the OECD in 2009 and with the help of companies like Siemens and other non-profit stakeholders partly funded by the Siemens Integrity Initiative. "
